The Playing Field:

Two similar parts are exist actually for the playing field: the lower part (your field) and the upper part (your opponent's field), and they both have same look and same sub-parts (each is shown below).

The Deck:

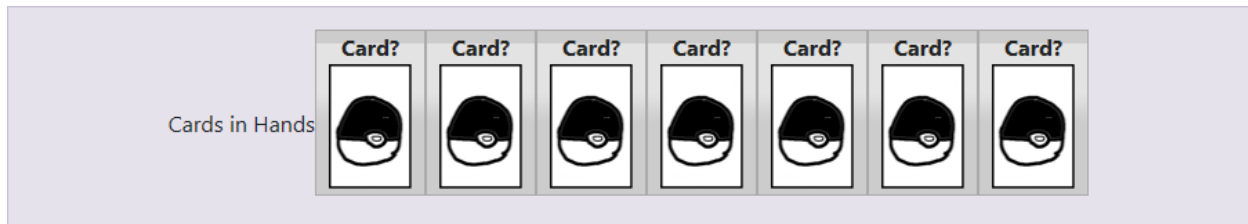

Here where you draw and search for cards (initially, there is 60 cards in the Deck). You'll use the deck to draw 7 initial cards, and then 1 new card every turn.

The Discard Pile:

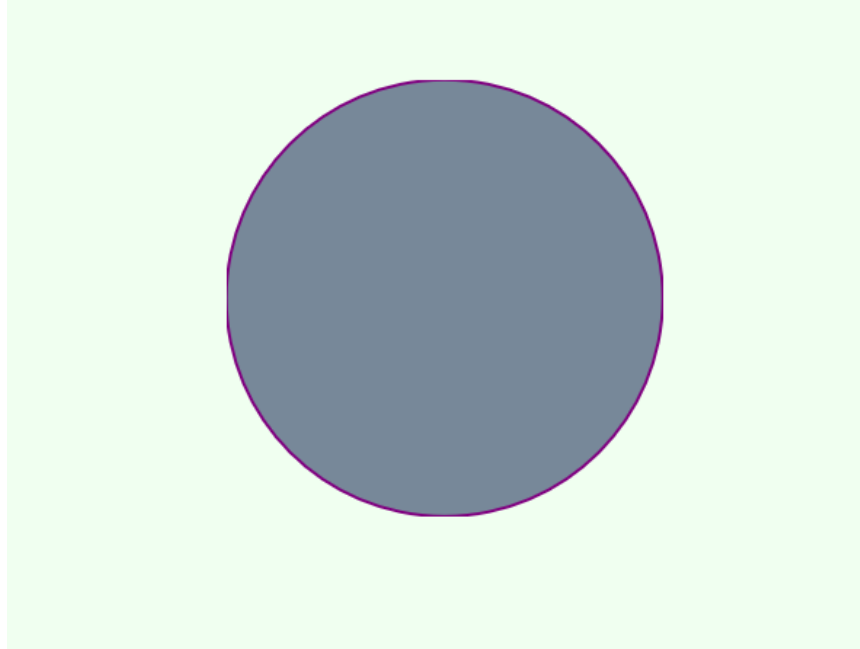

This is where used trainer cards go when you are done, as well as knocked out Pokémon and their depending energies.

Cards in Hands:

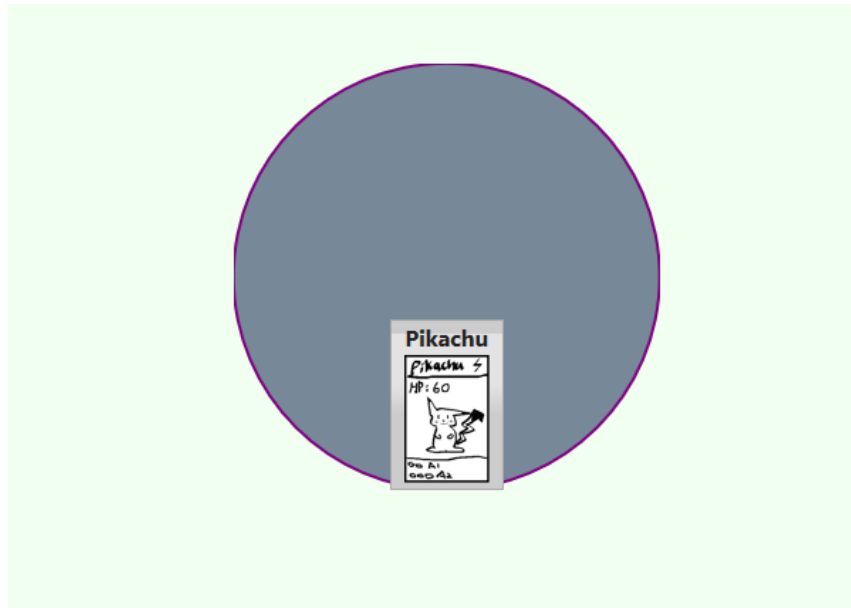

This is where you keep your available cards to play (should be kept hidden from you opponent 😊); You will put cards here every time you draw from the deck.

Active Cards:

This is where you put your Pokémon (and possibly its Energies) to attack; knowing that the active Pokémon is the only Pokémon that can attack.

An example of a field with one active Pokémon:

The Bench:

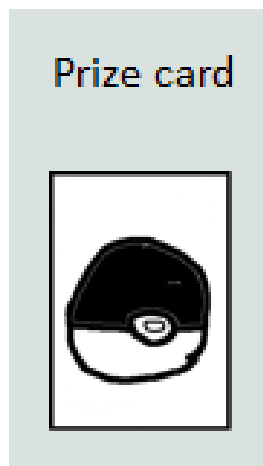

It can hold up to five Pokémon at a time (in addition for your Active Pokémon); you can choose your Pokémon to put in the Bench from the cards you have already in hand, and they are the only Pokémon that a player can put in or switch with the active card.

An example with a Bench with 2 Pokemon cards:

Prizes Cards:

At the start of each game, some cards from the Deck are placed facedown in the side (usually six cards), they are the prizes cards! Getting a knockout lets you take a prize card and put it in your hand, and taking all six prizes wins you the game 😊.

In the taskbar, you may choose between these options:

- i- Start a New Game; allows you to start a new game in the playing field.
- ii- Update collection; allows you to upload some cards collection, and here is how it looks like when go for it:

A screenshot of a web form titled 'User' at the top. The form contains a large, empty white rectangular area for text input. Below this area, centered at the bottom, is a blue button with the text 'Submit'.

- iii- Update Deck; simply updating decks for User and AI. Here how it looks like:

A screenshot of a web form titled 'Update Deck'. It is divided into two side-by-side panels. The left panel is titled 'User' and contains a list of numbers: 51, 52, 53, 58, 44, 43, 33, 32, 57, 57. The right panel is titled 'AI' and contains a list of numbers: 25, 3, 16, 1, 25, 4, 5, 6, 6, 14. Both panels have a vertical scrollbar on the right side. Below the two panels, centered at the bottom, is a blue button with the text 'Submit'.

- iv- Logout; to logout from your account, then it takes you to the sign in page again!
